Economics offers an understanding of how the economy operates and provides a basis for informed opinions on many public issues. An undergraduate minor in quantitative economics provides good preparation for careers in government, business, organized labor, trade associations, or teaching in the social sciences. It also provides an excellent base for graduate work in any of the social sciences or in professional schools such as law and business administration.

The minor in quantitative economics consists of 15 to 16 credit hours, depending on the course work selected. Four courses (Economics 2001, 2002, 4001, and 4002) and one course at the 5000 level.
